

Helen Penn

Helen Penn is Professor of Early Childhood in the School of Education, University of East London. She is an expert on early education and childcare policies. She works in many countries for international bodies such as the EU and the OECD and has a particular interest in developing countries. She has published many academic books and articles, and is also a columnist for the practitioner magazine Nursery World.
